DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S. C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-8 are directed to an isolated nucleic acid comprising a nucleotide sequence at least 90% identical to the nucleotide sequence SEQ ID No: 3, and complements thereof, a vector comprising the nucleic acid, and host cells transformed with the vector. The claims are further drawn to a method for producing a polypeptide using the transformed cells. Classified in Class 536, subclass 23.1, and class 435, subclass 69.1, 320.1, 325, and 455.
- II. Claim 9 is drawn to an isolated polypeptide comprising an amino acid sequence which is at least 90% identical to the amino acid sequence set forth in SEQ ID No: 9. Classified in Class 530, subclass 350.
- III. Claims 10-20 are drawn to a method for modulating apoptosis in a cell using a proteinaceous agonist or antagonist of Tid-1S and/or Tid-1L. Classified in Class 514, subclass 2.
- IV. Claims 10-20 are drawn to a method for modulating apoptosis in a cell using a nucleic acid encoding an agonist or antagonist of Tid-1S and/or Tid-1L. Classified in Class 514, subclass 44.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons.

Inventions II and I are independent and distinct inventions. Inventions are distinct if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case, each of the groups II and I is drawn to a different product, i.e. a nucleic acid or a protein. The different products are distinct in chemical structures as well as modes of operation when used as therapeutic and diagnostic agents.

Inventions IV and III are independent and distinct inventions. Inventions are distinct if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case, group III is drawn to a method of using a protein, and groups IV is drawn to a method of using a nucleic acid. Because a protein and a nucleic acid have different modes of operation, different pharmacokinetics and biodistribution when used as a modulator, the different methods would have different method steps, and require distinct technical considerations.

Inventions IV and I, and III and II could be related as product and process of use, respectively. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the process of group III could be practiced with a nucleic acid or a proteinaceous material, and the nucleic acid could be used in another process such as a diagnostic process.

The differences of the Inventions I-IV are further underscored by their divergent classification and independent search criteria.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter and different search criteria, it would impose an undue burden to the Office if all the groups are examined together, thus, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

3. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is advised that where a single claim encompasses more than one invention as defined above, upon election of an invention for examination, said claim will only be examined to the extent that it reads upon the elected invention.

4. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
